

Tablescapes

TONGUE TIED DINNER

Charlotte-based abstract artist Windy O'Connor, brings her ocean-inspired, vivacious paintings and new fabric line to Grant Thornton's Tongue Tide dinner.

WITH
Windy
O'Connor

White Orchids from Costa Farms are an elegant way to have long lasting blooms. costafarms.com

"Rising tide" Ink on Paper by Windy O'Connor, 24" X 30" Private Collection. windyoconnor.com

"I have always had a longing for the ocean. I live on the coast for most of the summer and my work is closely connected to my experiences and memories in nature." — Windy O'Connor

Weston Farms Hosta leaf veins mimic the patterns of ocean waves. westonfarms.com

Weston Farm Southern Magnolia appears to be dipped in chocolate velvet. The leaves are a luxurious, long-lasting statement. Brown Velvet 12" Bouquet, westonfarms.com

The irregular shapes and lavender hues of oyster shells make a great sculptural detail on a table top arrangement.

This design is from an ink painting full of transparent and cool hues. It is named Tangier after the coastal Moroccan city that for years has attracted artists because of the beautiful light and landscape.